

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. § 1. In the preface to my edition of the Corpus Glossary, published in 1890* by the Syndics of the Cambridge University Press, I stated, on pp. XL, XLIV etc., that already in 1885 I had made a transcript of the kindred Glossary preserved in a MS. of the Leiden University Library (Voss. Q°. Lat. No. 69), with the view of publishing it as a companion volume to the Corpus Glossary. But the editing of the latter had caused me such difficulties and labour that I shrunk from immediately taking the Leiden Glossary in hand, especially as work of another nature left me little time for a task which would not be easy and would require the editor's undivided attention.

§ 2. Meantime much valuable material on glosses continued to be published in the Archiv für Latein. Lexicographie, in the great works of Steinmeyer and Sievers (Althochdeutsche Glossen), Goetz (Corpus Glossariorum Latinorum) &c. So that, when Prof. Henry Jackson, who takes a keen interest in studies of this kind, expressed to me, in June 1902, his wish to see the Leiden Glossary published, and the Syndics of the University Press, after carefully considering my suggestions for the edition, consented to bear the expense involved in the publication of a book of this abstruse nature, which is not likely to be remunerative, I felt sufficiently encouraged to undertake the editing. On my application, Dr S. de Vries, the Leiden University Librarian, kindly sent the MS. again to Cambridge to enable me to collate it with my transcript, which I had been unable to do in 1885, because the MS. had unexpectedly to be returned, after Dr du Rieu, the late Librarian, had left it with me for a long time.

Plan of the present edition.

§ 3. The present edition is an exact reproduction, as far as type could make it, of the Latin-Anglo-Saxon Glossary preserved on the pages 20-36 (see below § 6) of the above-mentioned Leiden MS., the notes at the foot of the pages recording nothing but the graphic peculiarities and scribal alterations and emendations noticed in the MS.

* An Eighth-Century Latin-Anglo-Saxon Glossary, preserved in the Library of Corpus Christi College, Cambridge (MS. No. 144), edited by J. H. Hessels. Cambridge, at the University Press, 1890. 8°.

After this text follows (on p. 51) the First Index (Latin), which is, in reality, a complete repetition of every one of the Glosses in alphabetical order, and embodies all editorial emendations, corrections, elucidations of, or suggestions for emending, the Glosses. The system adopted for the compilation of this Index, may be seen from the first three or four articles: (a) under a are given the words in which a represents some other letter, or combination of letters, or from which a is omitted. So also under b, cand all the other letters of the alphabet. In this way I have endeavoured to compile for this Glossary tables similar to those printed on pp. xxi to XXXIX (§ 39-60) of my Introduction to the Corpus Glossary*. (β) the second a, or preposition, records all the places where it may be found in the text. (γ) the lemmata are printed in Clarendon or black type, ex. gr. aabita (3rd article of the Index); the figures after this lemma and the Glossator's interpretation or gloss on the lemma, refer to the text (see p. 5^a; Chapter II, gloss 87); then follows, between (), the source from whence the lemma has been extracted, with a short quotation † from this source showing the lemma in its context. After this follow editorial observations wherever necessary.

The Second Index (p. 217) records the Latin Numerals expressed by the Glossator in Roman signs; the Third Index (p. 218) registers the Greek words quoted or referred to in the I. or Latin Index. These Greek words are printed exactly as they are quoted. The Fourth Index (p. 221) registers the Hebrew words also quoted or referred to in the I. or Latin Index; while the Fifth Index (p. 222) is a register of all the Anglo-Saxon or other Germanic words which either occur in the Glossary (and then printed in Clarendon or black type) itself, or have been quoted from other Glossaries or other works in the I. or Latin Index by way of explanation or elucidation.

§ 3^a. The affinity, which, in many instances, suggests identity of sources, between certain parts of the Leiden Glossary, and the Corpus, Epinal, and (First) Erfurt Glossaries has been pointed out in the I. (Latin) Index under the various glosses; the identity of Glosses being indicated

* Here and there I have, no doubt, suggested spellings or emendations, which would not agree with the spellings of the post-classical MSS. with which our Glossary must be classed. For instance, under e I print (li. 34) manichei (manichei), which means, not that the latter spelling is to be substituted for the former, but that the classical form has ae; see also under h (harena) &c. Again, under f I give a collection of words which have f for ph (= ϕ), not as a novelty, but as a help for studies of this kind.

+ Without these quotations it would not always be easy to realise the meaning of certain expressions or the grammatical forms of words. Ex. gr. in Ch. xv. 40 oraculum is explained by two accusatives; the quotation in the Lat. Index (p. 159th) from Ezech. shows that this is done because oraculum is used there in the accus. On the other hand the Glossator turned the gen. electri of Ezech. t. 4 into electrum.

by the symbol=*. When there is merely similarity the word conf. (cf.) is used. These references will show the importance of the present Glossary for the gloss-literature, especially for the study of the Corp., Ep. and Erf. Glossaries.

Description of the MS. ; its contents &c.

§ 4. The Leiden Manuscript, in its present condition, consists of 52 small folio vellum leaves, besides 2 blank paper leaves (numbered 50 and 51, and bound between the vellum leaves 49 and 52), all consecutively numbered 1 to 54, by a modern hand, and divided into 8 quires or gatherings $a^{a}bcdefgh^{a}$; which would have made 62 leaves, if the last three leaves of quire c, the last four of quire g, and the first of quire h had not been cut away.

§ 5. These 52 leaves are bound in a simple, comparatively modern, red paper binding, measuring, including the margins of the binding, $10\frac{1}{4}$ inches or 261 mm. in height, and (slightly more than) $6\frac{1}{2}$ inches or 168 mm. in breadth. Without reckoning the binding, the vellum leaves measure $9\frac{1}{8}$ inches or 250 mm. in height (except the first 6 leaves which are a little shorter, and measure $9\frac{5}{8}$ inches or 246 mm.), and $6\frac{5}{16}$ inches or 161 mm. in breadth.

* That the affinity or similarity does not, in all cases, amount to identity, is, perhaps, owing to alterations or modifications on the part of one or more of the Glossators or copyists. Even the Leiden MS. does, perhaps, not always represent that original Glossary from which also parts of the Corpus, Epinal and Erfurt are derived, though, for its greatest part, it stands on an earlier stage than the latter three. We meet, here and there, with lemmata in the present Glossary, the corruption of which makes it clear that the Corp., Ep. and Erf. Glossaries could not have been copied from it, though they all point to the same source. For instance, the corrupt amopaga of Leiden xxxv. 130 appears correctly as ariopagita in Ep. and Ef., and partly corrupt as aripagita in Cp. Again, Leiden xxxv. 93 has molucrunt for inoleurant, whereas Cp. and Ef. have iolucrunt, and Ep. iolucrunt, corrected from iolocrunt.

§ 7. Age, handwriting and place of origin of the MS. The accompanying facsimile (which represents the verso of Fol. 26[†] in natural size, and exhibits the two hands that wrote the Glossary; see below § 13) shows that it was written (from Fol. 7 to the end of Fol. 46 recto) at a time when the Roman cursive, the Lombardic and the Merovingian minuscules, after having done duty, side by side, for a long period, were all merging, or had already merged into one kind of writing which is now called insular (West-Frankish).

 $\S7^{a}$. This insular writing, chiefly formed by natives (Scottish or Irish monks) of the British Isles, who flocked to the monasteries of West-Frankland (Salzburg, Fulda, Würzburg, St. Gallen, Lorsch &c.), shows, besides the chief characteristics \ddagger of the three minuscules which it supplanted, also some traces of the Hiberno-Saxon handwritings of the

* On the verso, a hand of the 16th cent. has written "An. Christi 343," and another hand of the same cent. "Von der geburt Christi biss vff S. Othmarij ist 720 Jar. Von Sant Othmarii biss vff Abt Francisci todt ist 809 Jar. So man die zwo zalen zu samen thut bringt sij 1529 Jar vnd ist recht."

⁺ The photographer having, in the course of his work, accidentally taken also a portion of the first column of Fol. 27, though reduced in size, it was not obliterated from the plate, since it will, no doubt, be found as helpful in judging of the writing of the MS. as the full-sized page.

 \ddagger To point out these characteristics would require a number of special types, which it was not considered advisable to procure for this work. They may be seen, still in their unmixed condition, in The Palaeographical Society, Ser. 11. pl. 51—53 (Roman cursive, 7th cent.), pl. 32 (Rom. cursive, late 7th cent.), 59 (Rom. curs., 7th or 8th cent.), 11 (Merovingian, 7th cent.), 8 and 9 (Lombardic, 8th cent.). Plate 4 of Chroust's 5th part gives a more or less stately Merovingian bookhand of the beginning of the 8th cent., and the capital A* seen on this plate closely resemble those of our MS.

8th cent., and the capital A^{*} seen on this plate closely resemble those of our MS. § These traces especially enable us to distinguish this writing from a similar hand employed, about the same time, in Upper Italy (Bobbio).

8th cent., especially in its contractions (see below § 14) and punctuation (see below § 21). After a comparatively brief career, however, it was, towards the latter end of the 8th, and the early years of the 9th cent., superseded, in its turn, by the Caroline minuscule *, which, however, preserved several of the peculiarities of the writing which it replaced.

§ 7^{b.} On examining the handwritings of the first 25 years of the 9th cent., figured in The Palaeographical Society, Ser. I. pl. 185 (a modified and rounded Lombardic minuscule of c. A.D. 800), pl. 45 (c. A.D. 804-820), pl. 122 (A.D. 821), pl. 123 (A.D. 823); and in Chroust's Monumenta Palaeogr., Pt. v pl. 5 (A.D. 800), pl. 6 (c. A.D. 800-825), Pt. vII pl. 4 (c. A.D. 802-804), Pt. I pl. 1 and 2 (A.D. 818), pl. 3 (c. A.D. 822), Pt. II pl. 1 (after A.D. 823), it will be found that all these writings, though still showing many peculiarities of the writing of the Leiden Glossary, exhibit the Caroline minuscule either fully developed, or very nearly so. And as this development may be observed, even in its best form, as early as A.D. 781 (cf. Steffens, Latein. Paläogr., pl. 35, and pl. 43 representing a Carol, min. of the beginning of the 9th cent.), it follows that we must go back to a period before A.D. 800 to fix the approximate date of the present Glossary.

§ 7°. Plate 35 of The Palaeogr. Society, Ser. 11, exhibits a late 8th century hand, in the transitional style between Merovingian and Caroline, but it has already more of the latter than of the former. Decisive, however, for fixing the approximate date of the Glossary, are pl. 31 of Steffens' Latein. Paläogr., which exhibits an attestation of Gundohinus, written, A.D. 754, in half cursive minuscules; pl. 32 a St. Gallen charter dated A.D. 757; pl. 33 showing (a) a document of Winithar of St. Gallen circa A.D. 761; (b) the Lord's Prayer in German, end of the 8th cent.; (c) a St. Gallen Charter of A.D. 782; pl. 40 a St Gallen Charter of A.D. 798 (792);-pl. 184 of The Palaeogr. Soc., Ser. I, giving a page of a Lex Salica MS. written at St Gallen, in A.D. 794, in Lombardic minuscules mixed with several of the characteristics of the writing of the present Glossary ;- three facsimiles in Vol. 11 of the Scriptt. Rerum Merov. (Monum. Germ. Hist., 4º coll.), taken from Cod. Lugd. Voss. quarto, No. 5, and Cod. Vatic. bibl. Christ. reg. No. 713, both ascribed to viii/ixth cent., showing the very same hand as the Glossary ;- Chroust's Pt. XI pl. 5 A.D. 795, 796, in the Monastery of Lorsch; ibid. pl. 6 and 7 the Rado Bible, ca. A.D. 790-808 in North. France; Pt. VII, pl. 3° Alcuin Letters, A.D. 798 or soon after, by a scribe who accompanied Bishop Arns of Salzburg on his travels to Rome.

§ 7^d. Among all these writings, dating from A.D. 754 to 800, especially among those executed at St. Gallen, the Leiden Glossary takes a natural place, whereas among the handwritings of the beginning of the 9th century, it looks a comparative stranger. Hence we have, as far as I can see, no choice but to ascribe the Glossary to the latter end, say the last decade, of the 8th century, and regard St. Gallen as the place where it was written. It is difficult to say whether the writer was an Irishman or a South German; several glosses are interpreted by O.H.G. words, but the scribe may have found them in the MS. which he copied*.

§ 7°. Other circumstances point to St. Gallen as the birthplace of the MS., and to its being, moreover, a copy from some earlier Glossary, which, in its turn, may be supposed to have been preserved, if not actually written or compiled, in the Monastery there. First of all, several of the Leiden glosses occur likewise in glossaries still preserved at St. Gallen, with occasionally slight modifications only. For instance, Hattemer (Denkmahle des Mittelalters, I. 237) records from a St. Gallen MS. (1395, 9th cent.) "murenula (De prologo Job), piscis similis anguillae marinae sed grossior, i.e. lantprida," which reads in Leiden: "murenula, piscis similis anguile marinus sed grossior." On the same page Hattemer quotes from the same MS. (from Job) "Clarea, lapides modici, i.e. chisilinga"; the Leiden MS. has "Glarea, lapides modici." The same St. Gallen MS. has (De libro Tobiae) "Branciæ, cheuun"; the Leiden MS. Brantie, chyun.

§ 7^f. The similarity of the Leiden Glosses to those of the St. Gallen MS. 299 (Hattemer, l.c. p. 238 sqq.) is still more pronounced. From Hester the latter has (on p. 241) tenta, giteid; aeri, hasye; iacinthinis, idest suidur haye; lectuli aurei, berianbed gildi bilegid i.e. tragabetti mit goldo bilegit; purpura, uilucbæsu; coccus, uurumbæsu cornvurma; rubeum, yretebæsu; the Leiden MS.: tenda, trabus gezelt; aeri, haue; iacyntini, syitor heuuin; lecti aurei, berian beed deauratum; purpura, uuylocbaso; coccus, uuyrmbaso; rubeum, uuretbaso.

§ 7^{s} . These similarities and identities \dagger suggest that there was, or had been, at St. Gallen, a Glossary or several Glossaries (perhaps all Latin-Latin), still in the first stage of their existence, that is, arranged under

* The above remarks regarding the age &c. of the MS., refer exclusively to the handwriting of the leaves 7 to 46 which include the Glossary (see above § 6). But the writing of the first 6 leaves, which form a quire by themselves (see above §§ 4 and 6), differs entirely from that of the rest of the MS. volume, though it points to the same time and the same locality. As neither the contents (described above § 6) nor the writing of these leaves come within the scope of this work, I need not say more than that the writing is also insular West-Frankish, similar to that figured on Chroust's pl. 3^b Pt. vn (Alcuin Letters, A.D. 798), except that it has not the open a, though it shows the uncial N at the commencement of a word in the body of a sentence.

+ Many more of the same kind could be quoted from MSS. preserved in other Swiss Libraries (Basel, Bern, Einsiedeln, Engelberg, and at Carlsruhe, Erfurt, Munich &c.), all described and published by Steinmeyer and Sievers.

the titles of the books from which, in an unalphabetical order, the difficult and out-of-the-way words with their interpretations had been excerpted, and that from this Glossary, or these Glossaries, various other Glossaries were compiled, perhaps by different persons of different nationalities; some of the compilers omitting all such lemmata with their interpretations which they considered unsuitable to their purpose, others substituting vernacular (O.H.G., A.S., or other dialects) interpretations for the Latin ones^{*}.

§ 7^h. At the end of the MS., moreover, there are three documents relating to the St. Gallen monastery, although these documents, being of a much later date than the other portions of the MS., may have been added to it at any time during or after the 13th century.

§ 7¹. Further it seems probable that the Leiden MS., before it came into the possession of Isaac Vossius, was in the Library of St. Gallen, and that there it became known to Melch. Goldast, who had worked in that Library, and resided for a long time in Switzerland. In his Paraeneticorum Veterum Pars 1, published in 1604 (Insulae, 4°), he refers to various glosses occurring in the Leiden Glossary, as, p. 81 Glossae anonymae : Sarabaite &c. (11. 161); p. 88 Interpretatio sermonum de Regulis ; suggectionem (sic !) &c. (II. 167) ; p. 93 Gloss. vet. : Carus, nomen hominis auari (!) &c. (XLIII. 19); p. 100 Glossae in Histor. Eccles. : exitiali &c. (IV. 29); p. 100 in Cassianum : letheo &c. (XXXIV. 2); p. 114 Gloss. vett.: gravitas &c. (II. 83); p. 118 Gloss. in Histor. Eccles.: affecit &c. (IV. 118); p. 123 Glossae vett. in Esdram: cratera &c. (XXIII. 7); p. 123 in Clementem: climacteras &c. (XXXVIII. 25); p. 126 Gloss, vett. in Esdram : memores salis &c. (XXIII. 12); p. 131 Gloss. vet. : Kyrieleison &c. (11. 98); p. 136 Gloss. vett. in Lib. Rotarum : faria &c. (XXVII. 2); p. 235 Interpretatio sermonum de Regul. ; regula &c. (II. 146); p. 241 id. : acidiosus &c. (II. 9); p. 423 Gloss. vett. : talpa &c. (XLVII. 79); p. 430 Glossae in Dialogorum Gregorii: fledomum &c. (XXXIX. 6); and three others which cannot be traced, as p. 39: Gloss. vett.: nocentia, culpa, reatus; Eædem: noxia, sententia, noxa (see 11. 117); p. 85: alternandis, alternis vicibus (see XL. 5 alternandis, inuicem).

* In this way we may, perhaps, explain why, for instance, some glossaries have glosses to all, or nearly all, the parts of the Bible, whereas others (ex. gr. the Cambridge MS. Kk. 4. 6, wholly Latin-Latin; the Leiden MS. Voss. 69, partly Latin-Latin, partly Latin-A. Sax.) begin at Paralipomenon; or, why in some of these kindred glossaries, the lemmata extracted from some books of the Bible, are all, or nearly all, the same in the various MSS., but have Latin interpretations in some cases, and Germanic (in different dialects) interpretations in others. A MS., which seems to have been copied from a source similar to that of Leiden, but has none of the A. S. Glosses, is in the Ambrosian Library at Milan (Cod. Ambrosian. M 79 sup. Saec. xii. fol. 124—); a specimen of it is published by Goetz, Corp. Glossar. Lat. v. pp. 425—431. Another is mentioned by Glogger as being in the Bern Town Library (2° 258).

The whereabouts of, and other details connected with, the MS. after leaving St. Gallen.

§ 8. Isaac Vossius is known to have gone in 1641 on a tour through France, Italy, Switzerland &c., and to have returned to Leiden, after an absence of about five years, with great treasures of MSS., and it is possible that among them was the MS. now known as Voss. Lat. 69, which contains the present Glossary.

§ 8^a. In 1649, on the invitation of Queen Christina, Vossius went to Stockholm to teach her Greek, and to collect a royal library, for which purpose he sold her his father's library for twenty thousand florins, reserving to himself its superintendence. He withdrew from Sweden in 1652, and Catteau-Calleville (Histoire de Christine, 1815, I. 330), without adducing any evidence, accuses him of having carried off "rich but scandalous spoils" from the royal library.

§ 8^h. In 1655, when Vossius may be supposed to have been in possession of the Leiden MS., Franc. Junius, jun., published at Amsterdam his Observationes in Willerami Abbatis Francicam Paraphrasin Cantici Canticorum (8°). In this work he often alludes to Glossaria A, B, C, D, without, apparently, making any mention of Vossius or of a Glossarium E, or any other Glossaria marked with letters of the alphabet.

But ten years later he published (Dordrecht, 1665, 4°) his Quatuor D. N. Jesu Christi Euangeliorum Versiones perantiquae duae..., and in the Gothicum Glossarium, which he added to this work, makes references to, or extracts from 13 Glossaria marked A to N, which he says, on fol. 12^{a} (4) of his preface, were all copied from, or forming part of, the Library "propinqui mei Vossii"*.

§ 8^e. In 1670 Vossius came to reside in England, was presented by King Charles II to a vacant prebend in the royal Chapel of Windsor in 1673, and died 21 February 1689 in London.

He bequeathed his Library to the two children (Gerard Jan, Councillor of Flanders, at Middelburg, and his sister Aafje) of his brother Matthæus, who first negociated with the Oxford University, but declined the latter's offer, and, by the intervention of Van Beverningh, one of the Curators of the Leiden University, offered the library to this Institution for the same price (33,000 Guilders = £3000) that Oxford had offered.

The Leiden Academy effected the purchase, and 34 boxes (five of which contained the manuscripts) were delivered to Van Citters, the Dutch Ambassador at London, from whence they were taken by a Dutch man-of-war to Texel, and thence to Leiden, where the whole arrived in October 1690*.

§ 9. The copies or apographa made by Junius (see above § 8^b), were all in the Bodleian Library † in 1694 ‡ when Frid. Rostgaard made a copy of them, which in Erasm. Nyerup's time was preserved in the Royal Library at Copenhagen (see pp. xxv, xxv1 of his Symbolae ad Literaturam Teut. ant. ex Codd. manu exaratis, qui Hauniæ asservantur, Hauniae, 1787, 4°). In 1697 they are described as Juniana 116, 117 on p. 255 of the Catal. Mstorum Angliae et Hiberniae (Oxon. fol.), and again in 1705 on p. 324 of Humphr. Wanleii Librorum Vett. Septentrionalium qui in Angliae Bibliothecis extant...Catal. (Oxon., fol°. = Vol. 11. of Geo. Hickesii Linguarum Vett. Septentrionalium Thesaurus).

§ 9^a. From Frid. Rostgaard's transcript an (inexperienced) amanuensis made again a copy which came into the possession of Barth. Chr. Sandvig, and with the help of this and Rostgaard's copy, Erasm. Nyerup published, in 1787, on coll. 360–382 of his above-quoted Symbolae, a large number of glosses contained in the Leiden Glossary, but not always in the same order, omitting many, and sometimes substituting other words for those of the Leiden MS. For instance, of the present edition he prints of Chapter 1 the nos. 13, 17, 20, 22, 30, 65, 81, 92, 101, 127, 128, 90; of Ch. II, nos. 6, 14, 12, 7, 13, 33, 43, 151, 119, 152, 5, 58, 69, 72, 100, 101, 98, 99, 110, 113, 156, 97, 95, 129, 149, 175; of Ch. III, nos. 6, 7, 8; then again II. 15, 80, 161; III. 11, 12, 17, 34, 41, 19, 35, 40, 48, 37, 38, 44, 52, 53, 54 in the order given here.

§ 10. L. Bethmann appears to have been the first who published, in 1845, extracts from Voss. Lat. 69 itself, in Moriz Haupt's Zeitschr. für deutsches Alterthum, Bd. v, pp. 194–198, confining himself to the Germanic glosses. In 1869, in Bd. xiv, p. 191 of the same Zeitschr., Ernst Martin corrected a few of Bethmann's readings, and published some glosses omitted by the latter.

§ 10^a. Of later editors of extracts El. Steinmeyer and Ed. Sievers should be mentioned, who, in their monumental work Die althochdeutschen Glossen (Berlin, 1879 &c.), beginning on p. 460 of Vol. 1, give all the Germanic glosses under the specific titles of the books of the Bible under which they appear in the Leiden Glossary and numerous other kindred Glossaries. In their second volume they continue the same plan with respect to all the Ecclesiastical and other authors whose works have been glossed by Germanic interpretations in the Leiden and other Glossaries; cf. their Vol. 1, pp. 460, 470, 475, 481, 488, 496, 525, 549, 561, 589, 640, 656, 666, 676, 678, 708, 738; 11, pp. 41, 154, 244, 334, 341, 356, 596, 597, 746. See also Steinmeyer in Zeitschr. f. d. Alterth. Vol. XXXIII, p. 248.

§ 10^b. Geo. Goetz published copious extracts from the present Glossary in the 5th Vol. (pp. 410—425) of his great *Corpus Glossariorum Latin*orum (8^o, Lipsiae, 1894).

A complete edition of the Leiden Glossary was published in 1901 at Augsburg by P. Placidus Glogger, O.S.B., under the title : Das Leidener Glossar Cod. Voss. lat. 4° 69. 1. Teil : Text der Handschrift. Programm des kgl. human. Gymnasiums St. Stephan in Augsburg zum Schlusse des Schuljahres 1900/01 *.

* I only became aware of this publication after a good part of my own text was in type, and nearly all my preparations for it had been completed. In April 1903 I accidentally found Glogger's name and edition mentioned in a list of Scholars who had used the MS., pasted in the MS. by the authorities of the Leiden Library. As I saw no notice of it in any of the German bibliographical Catalogues accessible to me, I wrote to Dr Glogger himself, and it then came out that he had forwarded a copy to me on 17 Oct. 1902, but addressed to 'Corpus Christi College,' where I do not reside, and the Librarian of that College, to whom it had been delivered, had, inadvertently, not sent it on to me.

Glogger generously offered to destroy his own edition rather than do anything which seemed to interfere with mine. But, though regretting that he had not informed me of his plan in the first instance, I requested him to go on with his work, as, in my opinion, there could be no harm in publishing two separate editions, in two different countries, of this interesting and difficult Glossary.

As Glogger sent me, in September 1903, the second part of his work, containing his explanations of the text, I have been able to use it with great advantage to my own. Under the circumstances I am naturally prevented from criticising his edition, but I have no hesitation in saying that it is excellent in every respect: and it is to be hoped that, in the proposed third part of his work, he will deal with all the material still to be found in a number of kindred Glossaries and other sources, but not touched by me or my predecessors, and yet so necessary for the further elucidation of the present most important Glossary.

Further description of the MS.; number of leaves; ruling and number of lines; its scribes; contractions.

§ 11. The Glossary, as stated above (§ 6), is written on the leaves 20^{*} —36, beginning on the recto of leaf 20, and ending at the end of the first column of the recto of leaf 36; and each page being divided into two columns, the Glossary occupies 16 leaves and one column of a 17th, or 32 pages and one column of the 33rd page, or 65 columns in all.

§ 12. Ruling and number of lines. The division of the pages into two columns has been effected by the drawing of three pairs of perpendicular blind lines on one side (either on the recto, or on the verso) of each vellum leaf with a hard point, namely one pair of lines (a space of about 5 or 6 mm. between them) on the left-hand side, another pair in the centre, and a third pair on the right-hand side of the leaf. The impression made by the drawing of these lines on one side (recto or verso) of the vellum leaves, served to mark off the other side (verso or recto) in a similar manner.

§ 12^a. Within the columns formed by these 3 pairs of perpendicular lines, are drawn, in a similar way, horizontal blind lines for the writing, namely 35 on the leaves 20-27 (recto and verso), and the verso \dagger of leaf 30, and 36 \ddagger to the columns of leaves 28 and 29 (recto and verso), the

* If, in the numbering of the leaves, account had been taken of the three leaves cut away after quire c, the leaf on which the Glossary begins would have been numbered 23. In other words, the Glossary begins on the first leaf of quire d, and ends on the first leaf of quire f.

+ This page is ruled for 36 lines as on the recto of the leaf.

[‡] Apart from the usual 35 and 36 lines to each column, the scribe wrote occasionally one or more words, which he was unable to bring within, at the foot of, the column, as: one word below col. 21^{bb} ; six words below col. 22^{aa} ; four syllables below col. 23^{ba} (preceded by L, see below § 22); one word below col. 25^{ab} (preceded by L); two (a gloss) below col. 26^{ab} ; four glosses (a whole line) below the two columns of leaf 26 verso; one word below col. 31^{bb} ; two below col. 34^{aa} (preceded by L); two below col. 35^{ab} ; one line above col. 35^{ba} , and two words above col. 25^{bb} (preceded by Γ , see below § 22).

On the other hand, in several places lines are left blank, but quite irregularly. From the first Chapter, where the glosses are arranged alphabetically according to the first letter of each gloss, it would seem that the original plan was to leave a vacant space between each letter of the alphabet. But the plan was not strictly carried out, as there is no blank left between the A and B, nor between the C and D, and after O it was abandoned altogether. Hence we only find the following blank lines: on Fol. 20^{aa}, the lines 19-21 (between the B and C Glosses); Fol. 20^{ab} the lines 23 (between the E and F), and 28 and 29 (between the F and G); Fol. 20^{ab} li. 6, 18 and 23 (between the I and L, N and O and O and P); 21^{aa} one li. between Chapter 1 and 11; 23^{ab} the lines 27-35 between Ch. 11 and 12 (between the section of the section o recto of leaf 30, the leaves 31 to 35 (recto and verso), and the last column* (leaf 36^{aa}).

As a space of about 20 mm, is left between each of the three pairs of bounding lines, and the two margins on each page take up about 27 mm. of the width of the page, a width of about 60 mm. is left for each column. The length of each column, as set off by the horizontal blind lines, is about 196 mm., giving a space of about $5\frac{1}{2}$ mm. between each horizontal line. Hence the writing occupies about 196 mm. of the length, and about 120 mm. of the width of a page.

At the commencement the scribe appears to have made, here and there, attempts to separate the interpretation from the lemma by a more or less well-regulated space, and to subdivide, in this way, each column into two, so as to bring four columns on a page. But after fol. 23 verso these attempts cease.

§ 13. Two scribes appear to have been at work : one who began the Glossary on Fol. 20na, continued it till the end of Fol. 23ba (vi. 31 inequiperabilis[†]) in one universal style of writing and size of letters, and with the same colour of ink. The next column (Fol. 23bb) is evidently written by another (second) scribe. But the first hand begins again on Fol. 24an in his usual style, and with the same colour of ink, though occasionally writing somewhat finer letters, and continued till Fol. 26^{aa} li. 5, when (beginning with Ch. xv1) he proceeds, with slightly blacker ink and heavier writing, till Fol. 26^{bn} li. 15, when he stopped at the word "Oriona," and the second hand again begins with the word "ebirdhring," and continues till li. 28 of the same column (26^{bn}), when the first hand resumes till the end of Fol. 26^{bb}. On Fol. 27^{aa} the second hand resumes and continues till Fol. 27^{ba} li. 21 (porcis). At the word "Symphonia" in the same line 21, the first hand commences again and continues till Fol. 28^{ba} li. 27 (repetitur), when the second hand resumes and continues till 28^{bb} li. 6 (explicatur). At li. 7 of Fol. 28^{bb} the first hand resumes and continues till Fol. 33^{bb} li. 14 (auctorale); then the second hand begins again at li. 15 (Item incipiunt verba) till 34m li. 26 (Neutricis nouis).

23-26 between Ch. x and x1; 24^{bb} , 26^{aa} , 27^{bb} , 28^{bb} , 52^{ba} , 34^{ab} , 35^{bb} one line each between the Ch. x11 and x111, xv and xv1, xxv11 and xxv111, xxv111 and xx1x, xxxv and xxxv1, x111 and x1111, x1v11 and x1v111 respectively; 25^{ab} three li. between Ch. x111 and x1v; 25^{ba} four lines between Ch. x1v and xv; 26^{ab} two li. between Ch. xv1 and xv11; 32^{ba} two li. at end of col. between Ch. xxxv1 and xxxv11; 34^{ba} one li. between the headline and the first gloss of Ch. x11v; 36^{aa} at end of col. before the scribe's final line 'Sicut inueni &c.'

* Here one line is left blank between the last line of the text, and the scribe's explanation of his work (Sicut inueni &c.).

+ The references refer to the present edition.

The first hand resumes at li. 27 (sutrinator), and continues till the end of Fol. 36^{an}, where the Glossary ends.

§ 13^a. If this analysis of the scribal work is correct, it may be tabulated as follows:

First hand :

20^{aa} (Commencement of Glossary) till end of 23^{ba} (vi. 31 inequiperabilis).

24^{aa} (viii, 14 Blena) till 26^{aa} li. 5 (xv. 48 leuem facere).

26aa li. 6 (xvi Incipit) till 26ba li. 15 (xix. 17 Oriona*).

26ba li. 29 (x1x. 31 Rinocerus*) till end of Fol. 26bh xx1. 5 (eorum*).

27^{ba} li. 21 (xxv. 7 Symphonia) till 28^{ba} li. 27 (xxvIII. 72 repetitur).

28^{bb} li. 7 (XXVIII. 79 Epexergasia) till 33^{bb} li. 14 (XXXIX. 73 auctorale).

34^{aa} li. 27 (XLII. 6 Sutrinator) till end of Fol. 36^{aa} (end of Glossary).

Second hand :

23bb li. 1 (VII De Paral.) till end of 23bb (VIII. 13 incedit).

26^{ba} li. 15 (XIX. 17 ebirdhring*) till 26^{ba} li. 28 (XIX. 30 sterelis*).

27^{aa} li. 1 (xxi. 5 significantes) till 27^{ba} li. 21 (xxv. 6 porcis).

28ba li. 28 (XXVIII. 72 quando) till 28bb li. 6 (XXVIII. 78 explicatur).

33^{bb} li. 15 (xL tit. Item) till 34^{aa} li. 26 (XLII. 5 nouis)†.

§ 14. Contractions[‡] (i.e. the omission of one or more letters from a word or syllable) are indicated in the MS. by

(A) a horizontal (sometimes waved) stroke.

* See Facsimile.

+ Some parts of the writing ascribed above to the first hand, might be attributed to a third, some even to a fourth hand, as, here and there, we observe words or whole lines in much finer and thinner writing than that which the first hand usually produces. And with the heading of Ch. xxix., the ink begins to be blacker till the end of gloss N°. 35. But it is impossible to speak with certainty on these points. This much is certain that the writing of the second scribe, though not differing, in its chief characteristics, from that of the first, is yet finer and more angular; the up-strokes of his b, d, l are taller and often reach the line above them; the down-strokes of his f, p &cc. longer, and his f (long s) is usually taller than that of the first hand, and has occasionally no tack on its left side. His work may further and chiefly be distinguished from that of the first scribe by its having no other mark of punctuation than a mere point (.) between words and at the end of glosses or lines, whereas the first scribe has a more elaborate system of punctuation (see below § 21).

§ 15. Different forms of some of the letters.

a, three varieties: (1) open at the top, resembling (in a few cases u, but mostly) two c^s ; (2) the form a; (3) formed somewhat like c, and written above the line, usually on a perpendicular stroke which connects it with a following m, n (see facs. li. 21), r, (long) s or t.

c (1) our present ordinary form; (2) having the form of two c^* , one written on the top of the other, linking on with its top-bow to a following t.

d, always our ordinary form; in one case (VIII. 7 domus) it has the uncial form ∂ , and might be read as capital, though it is smaller than the initial of Domatis, which is also uncial.

e (1) our present ordinary form, occasionally linked on, with its tongue, to a following f, n or r; (2) formed like an epsilon, and mostly, though not always, appearing in ligature with a following c, m, n, p, r, s, t, x.

g. Besides the ordinary form which may be seen in the facsimile, g has occasionally an extra curl to its base, as I. 133 (angor); XXVIII. 63 (congregatio).

i (1) the present ordinary form, but without a dot on its top; it is often linked on to f or l, more especially to the cross-bar of a preceding or following t, or to the L form of t; see facs. li. 10, 11.—(2) lengthened and drawn out below the line (like \mathcal{J}), and linked on to a preceding c, f (the two having nearly the form of B), l, r, t; (3) resembling a comma, and linked on, below the line, to the final stroke of m, n or t; occasionally to the bow of h or to the tongue of e, or below the bow of b, as in XXVIII. 28 (inridebit).

o (1) the ordinary form; (2) resembling the delta, and appearing, mostly, in ligature with the right-hand bar of a preceding r, though it is also found separate, after d, m or t. It twice commences a word (xxxv. 66, oma; xxxix. 57 oroccerum).

p, always the now usual form, except in v11. 7 (carpenta, written by the second hand), where it is in ligature with a preceding r, and has the peculiar form in which it often occurs in ligature in the Roman cursive writing, as early as the 6th century, for which see pl. 2, A.D. 572, of The Palaeographical Society, Series 1, li. 6 (e pollicetur), 15 (interposita); pl. 68, li. 10 (perpetuis); also li. 1 (recipisti), 3 (manepolos; reponendi), 4 (apponet), 7 (aperi). The same form occurs again xxxv. 166 (turpes), in ligature with the preceding r, and again xxxv. 293, after, and linked on, by its top, with x. Another, slightly different form of Roman cursive p appears in the last line of the Glossary (the advertisement of the scribe ne rep-); this resembles the p of "sponsione" in li. 15 of pl. 2 of The Palaeogr. Society, First Ser.

r (1) the now ordinary form. In two instances (XIII. 7 discernuntur, and XIII. 15 diurnales) the r reminds us of earlier A.S. writing, and might be misread as n, though in both cases it differs sufficiently from the following n to guide a careful reader. In XXVIII. 88 (forme), however, we have an n corrected into r, and XXXV. 295 has cathanos for catharos; (2) somewhat like the numeral 2, always after o, also after the capital O, and then written larger, as in IV. 51; (3) the right-hand stroke lengthened and slightly bent, to link on with a following δ , e (e or ϵ), i, m, n, o, (long) f^* ; (4) left-hand stroke lengthened below the line, and the top bending down to combine with a following t or e, and so resembling a long f (an r of this kind appears XIV. 22, in fatores, but so misshapen that it seems more i corrected into r).

s, long f, which is nearly always f, except occasionally in the handwriting of the second scribe. It is frequently linked on, by a rounded top, to a following t.

t, (1) with a flat top, is found in three varieties: (a) its cross-bar is curled round \dagger (like c), or (b) ends in a mere down-stroke (like i) on its left-hand side; (c) when final, the right-hand end of its cross-bar is curled upward towards the left.—(2) having the shape of an epsilon, and linked on to a following lengthened i, or to r, or forming with following ri, one ligature (tri).—(3) resembling a slightly twisted l, and combining with a following r or i. This t is mostly written on the final stroke of n drawn out towards the right \ddagger . Its form is smaller when combined with a preceding epsilon-shaped e.

v is never found in the text, except by way of correction : ex. gr. II. 62, where it is written above the line to be inserted in place of an omitted u; III. 27, where it is written above an e, which it is to replace. For other

* The same appears also 1. 19 (grece) as final r. For a somewhat similar r, lending itself to receive the contraction for um, see above § 14 B°.

+ This curl and stroke are occasionally disconnected from the cross-bar, and might be read as a separate c or i, as 1. 8 (allectat), 50 (mittent); 11. 187 (ueterem); 11. 1 (ueternorum).

‡ See Facsim. li. 8, 11. In r. 117 (contra) its shape is 2.

instances, see iv. 5; xv. 33; xxviii. 53, 54; xxx. 73; xxxiv. 10; xxxv. 179; xxxviii. 27. For a sign resembling this v see below § 23 d.

w; Anglo-Saxon w is written as uu. Its old form \mathcal{F} appears misread as p in uuld-paexhsue (for uuld-w-).

y has nearly always a dot on its top, as in facs. col. 1 li. 18, col. 2 li. 11.

z may be seen in facs. col. 1 li. 17.

§ 16. Ligatures or combinations of two or more letters are numerous; ex. gr.

æ (=ae), appears in this form only three times: XLII. 41 (suæ ald), XLVII. 90 (snægl), and CÆLO* in the title of Ch. XLIV. In one place (XXX. 37) the ligature consists of the left-hand stroke of an open a, and an ordinary e. Otherwise the diphthong ae is represented often by e, see I. 24 (sepulture), 120 (subnixe &c.); II. 88 (materie), but mostly by ę; I. 2 (tabulę), 68 (quę) &c.; so also AE by $\not\in$ (title to Ch. IV). Combined appear mostly: ci; cr; ct; cti; &c; ect; em; en; ent; enti; ep; er; eri; es; est; esti; et; ex; fe; fi; fit; i; j; ici; it; li; lj; LX (Roman numerals); mi; ni; nt; nti; or; ra; rei; ret; rg; ri; rm; rn; ro; rs; rt; st (two forms); str; tj (three forms); tri; tro.

§ 17. Capitals. The titles of the Chapters are all written in rustic capitals, indiscriminately mixed with uncials.

Every lemma has either a capital or an uncial as initial. In the few instances where this is not the case (ex. gr. Ch. II. 139, 144; III. 13-16), we may suppose the scribe to have been unaware of beginning a new gloss.

The capital initial of the first lemma of the Chapters I—IV, XXIII, XXVI, XXX, XXXI, XXXVII-XXXIX, XLIV[†]-XLVII, is somewhat larger than the initials used for the other lemmata, and more or less ornamental, in the style of the Capitals in the St. Gallen MS. of the Lex Salica (A.D. 794), figured on pl. 184 of The Palaeogr. Society, 1st Series.

In the first two Chapters (which are arranged alphabetically according to the first letter of the lemmata) some attempts have been made to commence each new letter of the alphabet with a larger or more distinctive initial. Ex. gr. the initial of the first lemma of the D glosses (I. 35 Dogma) is a capital (D), but the initials following are uncials (δ).

§ 18. Greek letters. There are a good many Greek words in the Glossary, but all written in Latin characters. Greek letters, however,

* This ligature is really minuscule, but written larger than usual; it is here printed as capital.

+ In Ch. XLIV. the glosses 24 and 28 have also ornamental capitals.

appear in 1v. 101 (π o, in porsutas), and a whole Greek word xv111. 1 (CYNXPONON). And as such we must also describe the xp in "Christus" and its derivatives, see above § 14 A c.

§ 19. Illustration. See Signs, below § 23 g.

§ 20. Numerals (for which see below, Index of Latin numerals, p. 217) are usually placed between two dots.

§ 21. The Punctuation of the MS. has everywhere been strictly adhered to. It has been pointed out above (§ 13^{n} , note †) that the second hand employed no other mark of punctuation than a point (.).

The first scribe, however, used a more elaborate system of punctuation. There are first the three ordinary marks (. ; :) to divide words from each other or to indicate the end of lines &c.

The point (.) is sometimes written level with the line; sometimes raised to the centre of the word preceding it.

The semicolon (;) and colon (:) can, in many cases, hardly be distinguished from each other, as the , of ; is often so small that it looks almost like a point (.), while the lower point of the colon is very often more like a comma (.).

Besides these three marks of punctuation we occasionally find .: (see I. 13), or : (I. 87), or ! (I. 125), or :; (II. 131), or ;: (II. 132), apparently without any special meaning.

§ 22. Signs of reference. When there was, as frequently happened, no room for the whole gloss on the line where it had been commenced, the scribe wrote the remaining words or syllables either on the line above or below the proper line, prefixing Γ to the words or syllables written above, $\underline{\}$ to those written below the line. In one case (xx. 12) the Γ is followed by a colon (:). In XII. 9, there being no further room in the line after "habens", the scribe wrote \vdots after it, added "aliquando de ere" two lines higher up in the space left vacant after gloss 7, prefixing \vdots to these words, and wrote the remainder of the gloss (mento sicut et olla) on the next line after gloss 8, dividing these additions to the lines of glosses 7 and 8 and the mark (\vdots) of reference by the hook Γ .

In 1. 91, 92, the reading of the MS., in strict accordance with these signs, leads to two wrong glosses; see the note to these glosses on p. 2.

For a further use of these signs see above, p. xviii, note ‡.

§ 23. A few more features of the MS. have to be dealt with, most of which have already been pointed out in the foot-notes to the text. They will, however, give a better idea of the MS. when classified under such headings as corrections (§ 23^{a}), division of words, syllables and glosses

(§ 23^b), insertions (§ 23^c), marking words (§ 23^d), omissions (§ 23^c), signatures (§ 23^f), signs (§ 23^s), spots (§ 23^h), strokes (§ 23ⁱ), transposition (§ 23^k), uncertain words (§ 23^j), underlining (§ 23^m), &c.

§ 23^a. Corrections seem all to have been made by the scribes themselves, and not afterwards by some corrector. They are indicated or effected by (A) writing the letter to be substituted above the one to be replaced; see I. 103; II. 9, 155, 164; III. 27; IV. 6, 106; VIII. 18 &c.-(B) altering one letter into another, which was sometimes done distinctly, as II. 71; IV. 2, 52, 65; sometimes indistinctly, as I. 115; II. 29; III. 43 .--(C) erasing one or more letters and leaving a blank space instead, as II. 134. In some cases the erased letter or letters or parts of them may still be discerned, I. 39; II. 36, 112; VI. 7; in other cases the original letter or letters are entirely effaced, 11. 45; 111. 63; 1v. 89 .- (D) erasing one or more letters, and writing the required letter or sign on the erasure, 11. 39; XIII. 41; XIV. 11 &c. Occasionally the wrong letters have been erased without the correct letters being substituted, II. 10; XVI. 6 .-(E) marking a letter or stroke to be erased by (a) a dot: XXXII. 8, 11 (both these cases are doubtful); (stroke to be erased) II. 176; XXXI. 27; XLIV. 8.—(b) two dots (one above and one below, or one on each side of the letter, or both underneath the letter): xvi. 22; xxviii. 48; xxx. 33; xxxi. 8; xxxii. 4; xxxiv. 10*; xxxv. 179; xxxviii. 24; xxxix. 1, 5; XLIV. 11; XLVIII. 47.-(c) three dots: IV. 55; VI. 7; XIV. 3; XVI. 29; xxviii. 49; xLvii. 22.-(d) four dots: xxviii. 20; xxx. 35; xLiii. 13.--(e) five or six dots, xxx. 73.—(F) marking a letter to be erased by (a) one dot, and writing the letter to be substituted above the line, xxvIII. 69; xxxv. 14; xxxvii. 6; xLvii. 82; (with the correct letter below the line) XLVIII. 35.-(b) two dots: XXXV. 27.-(c) three dots: XLVII. 22.-(d):, as in XXVI. 5.—(e) \div above a wrong word, referring to a similar sign above the correct word written in the margin within lines forming a square, XXVIII. 77.—(f) a dot underneath the letter to be erased, and another dot on the right-hand side of the letter to be substituted written above the line, xxxvIII. 37.

§ 23^b. The division between words, syllables and glosses is often very defective, in spite, or perhaps on account of the rather elaborate system of punctuation described above in § 21. For instance, in 1. 15 the MS. has 'ame mo ria' for 'a memoria'; 1. 36 it has 'par ro chiis,' and so on. It was not considered necessary to follow the MS. in this respect, except in a few cases where the gloss is obscure.

As regards the individual glosses, at the outset the scribe seems to have intended to reserve one line to each lemma and its gloss, however short these might be, and to write, wherever practicable, words or syllables which could not be brought into their proper line, either above or below it, as I. 12 &c. Somewhat lengthy glosses, as I. 36, 90, 95, 100, 115, 127 occupy two lines, the second line slightly indented. But the scribe seems soon to have realised that, in this way, he would leave a good deal of vacant space, and so, at and after 111. 42, 43 he commenced a second gloss wherever there was any vacant space left in the line after the first, adhering to his former plan of writing any words or syllables that could not be brought into the line either above or below it*.

§ 23°. Insertion is indicated by writing (1) the omitted and to be inserted letter, or letters, above the line over or between the letter or letters where the insertion is to be made, 11. 19, 56, 62, 173, 180; III. 34, 43, 48; IV. 1, 77, 93 &c.-(2) the letter to be inserted above the line with a dot underneath, or on its left-hand side, 11. 29.-(3) the letter to be inserted above the line with a dot on its left, and another dot after the letter where the insertion is to be made, 11. 71.-(4) the letter, or letters to be inserted, above the line between two dots, IV. 91; XLIV. 1.-(5) a word to be inserted above the line between three dots, 11. 182. In xxx. 52, 95, 96 some Latin words are written over Greek words to explain or translate the latter. -(6) an omitted syllable ($\bar{p} = pre$) above the line, with a dot above the stroke, XXVIII. 21.-(7) the letter to be inserted below the line (attached to h), xxx. 46.—(8) a word to be inserted above the line with a mark of reference (+) before it, and a similar mark after the word after which it is to be inserted, XXII. 12 .-(9) a word to be inserted on the left of the lemma within lines forming a square, with a mark of reference (÷) above the word, referring to a similar mark written above the place where the insertion is to come, xxx. 7.

§ 23^d. Marking words or glosses. With a few exceptions[†] all the

* To prevent confusion the individual glosses have here been numbered. The first instances of two glosses being written in one line are n. 138, 139 and 143, 144, but they seem attributable to inadvertence or ignorance on the part of the scribe, as in both cases the second gloss does not begin with a capital, which seems to show that the scribe was not aware of having begun a second gloss. At n. 112 we meet with two lemmata in one line, without a gloss; but the scribe left some space between the two words, probably intending to write the glosses afterwards. n. 13—16 are three glosses written together, but perhaps by mistake, as the scribe does not seem to have understood them.

+ The exceptions are: III. 34 (briudid), 38 (haeslin), 44 (su), 48 (uastrung), 53 (floda), 57 (pox); IV. 66 (borgenti), 71 (gaesuopę), 77 (tunderi), 83 (mixin); V. 2 (lomum), 5 (poccas); VII. 4 (dunnę); XIX. 16 (hreod), 17 (ebirdhring), 19 (fezra), 26 (haubit loh), 36 (haefuc), 38 (chelor), 41 (osifelti), 54 (ýmaeti gold), 59 (uuldpaexhsue); XX. 3 (chynn), XXII. 5 (gezelt), &c. None of these words are marked.

Germanic^{*} glosses are marked in our MS. either by a horizontal (sometimes waving) stroke above them, or by an insulated v, also written above one or more letters of such glosses.

As it was found impracticable to print either the strokes or the v above the words, their presence in the MS. has been pointed out in the footnotes. But it is necessary here to discuss the possible meaning of the latter mark.

The strokes occur III. 11, 15 (here wrongly over a Latin word), 35, 37, 63-66; IV. 24, 74-76, 99 (here wrongly over a Latin word); V. 11, 15, 19, 22, 30; (VIII. 15); XVI. 28; XIX. 29, 35, 59, 63; XXIX. 11; XLVII. 31; XLVIII. 28, 54, 61, and are obviously intended to draw special attention to the words over which they are written.

The v occurs first of all XII. 18, and thenceforward (excepting the few cases just mentioned, where strokes are employed) regularly above Germanic words: XIII. 24, 34, 35, 40, 50; xv. 4; xvII. 11; xvIII. 2; XIX. 35 (see photogr., 1st col. li. 32), 43 (ib., li. at foot), 60 (ib., 2nd col. li. 15), 61 (ib., li. 16); xXI. 20 (ib., add. col., li. 17); XXII. 3 (ib., li. 22); XXIV. 3; XXVII. 25; XXXIV. 3; XXXV. 3, 6, 35, 54, 55, 59, 66, 69, 73-75, 122, 157, 158, 165, 175, 176, 203, 288; XXXVI. 7, 10, 14; XXXVII. 7; XXXIX. 6, 12, 20, 27, 30, 37; XLII. 6, 27; XLVI. 18 (here a stroke above the a was corrected into v); XLVII. 36 (v written sideways with top towards the left).

In none of these cases does the v differ from the v described above (§ 15), which latter is never used in the text of the Glossary, but only above the line, by way of correction, whenever u had been omitted; hence it was clearly intended for v (=u). There seems, therefore, no reason against accepting the v above the Germanic words likewise as v (= u).

It is true, in four instances (XIII. 41; XLII. 2; XLIII. 38; XLVII. 19), the mark looks more like y; in one case (XXII. 8; see photogr., add. col., li. 26) we could hardly read anything but y; in two cases (XLVII. 33, 65) it may be said to resemble x; in one case (XIX. 43; see photogr., last word of li. added at foot) it is v[.]; in another (XXVI. 6) y; and in two instances (XLII. 4 and XLVI. 42) it is more y with a dot above it. But these deviations seem to be nothing but the result of the scribe having accidentally drawn down the right-hand stroke of the v a little more than was strictly necessary[†].

* There are, apparently, no Germanic glosses in the first two Chapters; toscia $(\pi. 101)$, which has been regarded as such, is most likely a late Latin word, for which see the Index.

† In most cases the real y has a dot above it, as: Kyrieleison (II. 98); Typo (II. 179); Myrtus (XII. 48); Synicias (xv. 2); and (by second hand) uuylocbaso (XXII. 16); uuyrmbaso (XXII. 18). Occasionally it has no dot, as: hymnum (II. 85); crypta (XVI. 3). But wherever we examine it, it was clearly formed by first writing the v, and then adding the down-stroke to it. The scribe, therefore, knew when he had to write y not v.

It is impossible to say whether the scribe added the v above the line immediately after having written the word to be marked, or whether in all cases it was added afterwards either by the scribe himself or by a corrector. In most cases the v looks, in duction and colour of ink, exactly like the letters over which it stands, but here and there it looks finer than most of the other v^s, and also finer than the word over which it stands, whence we may infer that, in these cases, some corrector added the v.

As this marking of the Germanic glosses commenced with the horizontal stroke, and the v was adopted afterwards, it seems not unreasonable to say that it originated with our scribe, and that he did not merely follow the MS. from which he copied. If so, the v must have been intended to be v (=u), and only became, in a few instances, more like y or x by accident.

If the MS. which our scribe followed had, say f (for saxonice), above the Germanic glosses, he might have misread this for y; but then we should find the latter character more frequently, or perhaps some other mark for the misunderstood f in our MS. The corruption might even go back to an earlier MS. than that copied by our scribe. None of these guesses, however, will sufficiently explain the regularity and uniformity of the v in our MS.

Hence it seems more reasonable to assume that the mark v really means v and is the initial of the word "vernacule," which would be most appropriate to our case.

In one instance (xxx1. 4), indeed, the v is found above a Latin word $(uncias^*)$; in another (xxx. 6) over the word sax. The former may be due to inadvertence of the scribe, or to some other unexplained cause; and as to sax its meaning is supposed to be saxonice, and if this be the case, it would not be inappropriately marked by our scribe with v (= vernacule).

§ 23°. Omissions may be noticed occasionally as: (1) of interpretations, 1. 14, 18, 23, 26, 42, 43, 72, 75, 79, 83, 99 &c. It is possible that in such cases the original Glossator had excerpted the lemmata from his sources with the intention of adding the interpretations later on.—(2) of one or more letters, 1. 25 meretribus (for meretricibus); 11. 100 (uestmenta for uestimenta).

§ 23^f. Signatures to the quires do not appear in the MS., though it is possible that they have been cut away by the binder.

§ 23^s. Two Signs for weights occur in Ch. XXXII. 2, see Latin Index (C. apud latinus &c.); another in XXXII. 4 (see ibid. Obolus) and another XXXII. 5 (see ibid. uncia); a sign for a shepherd's crook occurs in Ch. XLV.

* Glogger suggests that this may refer to an original A.S. ynce, or to O.H.G. unza.

18 (see ibid. pedum). Other signs, the meaning of which is not certain, are (1) three dots above i, 111. 18; (2) two dots above an open a, 1V. 77 (as the a is much like two cc, the scribe, perhaps, indicated that the dotted tops had to be erased); (3) \dagger in the margin (to indicate something wrong), x11. 13, also by the side of a line left blank, x111. 53; (4) + above the line, as mark of division (?), x1V. 9 (see also above § 23 b).

§ 23^h. Spot, in the vellum, and hence a blank left by the scribe, 11. 91.—Accidental (ink) spot, 1v. 75.

A. Perpendicular strokes, (1) meaningless (?), or perhaps the top of a wrongly commenced b, d, l or other letter, 1. 126 and xxx. 87 (above u); II. 11 and 167; xxxv. 33 (above p); x. 22 and xxvIII. 38; xxxv. 44 (above r); XIII. 36 (above o); xxxv. 227 (above t).—(2) as mark of transposition, xv. 14 (perhaps here = i?).—(3) to separate two glosses (?), II. 144. B. Horizontal strokes. (1) to mark A.S. (or supposed A.S.) words (see above § 23 d).—(2) to mark a Greek word, xvIII. 1.

§ 23^k. Transposition is indicated by writing above the words to be transposed (1) three dots (:-), iv. 105; xxviii. 68; xxxvi. 3.—(2) the mark \div , xxxv. 195; xL. 17.

§ 23¹. Uncertain words, letters or signs, or expansion of contractions, x11. 27; x111. 42; xxx. 85, 95; xxx11. 5, 7; xxx111. 5; xxxv. 1, 236, 297.
 § 23^m, Underlining both lemma and interpretation (meaningless?),

It is hoped that the text of the Glossary is free from serious blemishes, especially as I was able to compare my readings of the MS. with Dr Glogger's carefully prepared edition (see above p. xvii, note).

That my critical Indexes will be free from errors and shortcomings is more than I can expect. But those who use the work will, I trust, pardon them on account of the hundreds of difficult, obscure and intricate points that had to be ascertained, examined and solved. There remain certain obscure points, ex. gr. amatorie, ars philophie (?). What is meant by the latter word ?—antesignato, signatore suspectum. What word or what meaning is hidden in suspectum ?—arcticos, here the sentence after antarticus does not seem to be quite correct.

In view of all that has been published during the last fifty years on Glosses, I felt that a mere reproduction of the text and a mere Index to the Latin and Germanic words, which seemed to be the only feasible plan for the Corpus Glossary, would not be of much use with respect to the present one, especially as it indicates the sources of a great many of the Glosses, and affords, therefore, a firmer basis for editorial researches and emendations. The Syndics of the University Press readily agreed with my views, and it is hoped that the result may be considered fairly satisfactory.

In tracing the glosses to their sources I have derived much help from the eminent labours of Goetz, Steinmeyer, Glogger, Schlutter (various articles in the Archie für Lat. Lexic. ; Anglia ; Journ. of Engl. Philol. de, de.). But I may be excused for saying that, in spite of this advantage, I had to read most of the sources myself again, in the endeavour to find, if possible, those words which they had been unable to trace. I read Rufinus five or six times, as the Glossary contains six collections of words excerpted from him (see next page). The Canones, the Regula S. Benedicti, St Jerome's Liber de Viris illustribus and other sources I read three or four times, because the glosses from these sources either appear alphabetically, and, therefore, no longer in the order of their source, or have become misplaced by the scribes. Cassiodorus' Comment. on the Psalms I read two or three times, apart from the time I spent in tracing the words of Ch. xxviii to him, as the Glossary does not ascribe them to him, but to the Liber Antonii, though only seventeen of them are excerpted from this last source,

To discover, if possible, the source of the words glossed in Ch. VI I spared no efforts, and as several of them had a poetical look about them, I read Dracontius, Prudentius and other Latin poets, but in vain. They have now been traced to Gildas (see below p. xxxviii).

Space does not allow me to point out either the importance of various glosses for lexicographical and other purposes, or the special features of this Glossary in connection with other Glossaries. Such further remarks I reserve for another work which I am preparing for the London Philological Society, and which will deal with the Corpus, Epinal and Erfurt Glossaries in combination with the present Glossary.

To conclude, I discharge a pleasant duty in thanking the Syndics of the University Press for bearing the expenses involved in the publication of this edition; the Reader of the same Press for his unremitting attention to the correctness of the work; Prof. John E. B. Mayor and Mr Alex. Souter (of Mansfield College, Oxford), for reading the proofsheets and helping me with corrections and observations; Mr Israel Abrahams, Mr H. T. Francis, Prof. Henry Jackson, Mr F. J. H. Jenkinson, Mr H. L. Pass, Dr W. Aldis Wright, the Rev. the Master of 8t. John's College, for help in various ways; and the Council of Trinity College for the loan of one of their copies of the Augsburg edition of

c. 1470 of St Jerome's Liber de Viris illustribus (see below p. xlix). Prof. W. W. Skeat has not only read all the proof-sheets, but assisted me in the A.S. portion of the work by copious notes, observations and corrections with the utmost readiness and generosity. His notes, corrections &c. appear with respect to some words in the I. (Latin) Index, with respect to others in the V. (Germanic) Index in a more or less abridged form, for which I alone am responsible.

De Eusebio (306 glosses) p. 33ⁿ-38^b These three chapters consist of five or six collections of glosses to the nine Books of Rufinus' Latin translation of Eusebius' Ecclesiastical History and to the Books x and x1 which Rufinus added of his own to Eusebius. The Chapters IV and v are evidently two independent collections, the one being the first 111 glosses of Chapter IV, for the most part arranged (unalphabetically) in the order in which the lemmata occur in Rufinus' text. The second (alphabetically arranged, and, therefore, no longer following the order of Rufinus' text) extends (as far as the A and B glosses) from gloss 112 to the end (gloss 120) of Chapter IV, and (for the C to T glosses) till the end of the fifth Chapter. This arrangement, therefore, shows that the heading to Ch. v (De Ecclesiastica Storia) is out of place, and should have come before the 112th gloss of Ch. rv.

In Ch. xxxv. we have three (perhaps four) independent collections, in which the lemmata are arranged, not alphabetically, but, with a few exceptions, in the order in which they occur in Rufinus' text. The first, which deals with his eleven Books, extends from gloss 1 to 73. The second (which likewise deals with the eleven Books) extends from gloss 88 to gloss 247. The third seems to have been split up (perhaps in the process of copying) into two portions, one (glosses 300 to 306) dealing with Rufinus' Books 1 to 1v, the other (glosses 248 to 299) with his Books v to xI.

VI. Incipit breuis exsolutio (= Gildas, De Excidio Britanniae Lib.) p. 10 ⁶
All efforts to identify the glosses of this chapter had hitherto been unsuccessful, till Glogger recognised them by Schlutter's reference (see The Journal of English and Germanic Philology, Vol. v, p. 466) to a line in Gildas. As he kindly pointed this out to me on 1 Jan., 1906 (after my text and Latin Index had been printed), the references of all the words identified are given in the Addenda. Only three or four remain to be traced.
The heading, breuis exsolutio, is, apparently, not derived from Gildas' work, and is, perhaps, to be attributed to the Glossator.

p. 42b-43a XL. Item incipiunt Uerba . . Nearly all the lemmata in this chapter have also been traced to Gildas (see above the note to Ch. vi), and the references will be found in the Addenda.

XLI. Item de nominibus diuersis

p. 43ª-43b

The Glosses 1—6 are excerpted from the Canones, in continuation to Nos. 53— 73 of Ch. xxxix (see also above Ch. 1). The Glosses 7—16 are ten names of precious stones, excerpted, it seems, from Apoc. xxi. 19, 20, as the lemmata all follow there in the same order as in the present Glossary. They are also mentioned, though in a different order, in Exod. xxviii. 17—20 and xxix. 10—13, and Ezek. xxviii. 13. They all occur in the Cp., Ep. and Ef.¹ Glossaries (except that Nos. 7 and 8 are wanting in Cp., and 8 also in Ep. and Ef.¹, and in Ep. and Ef.¹ (which have, in spite of their later date, in certain parts, a more primitive alphabetical arrangement than Corpus), in the same order under their respective initial letters, as here. initial letters, as here.

Certain parts of the explanations of the names of these stones appear in the present Glossary under different stones than in the Cp., Ep. and Ef.¹ Glossaries, as is indicated in the I. Index (Latin)

The Glosses 17-21 are probably all from Sulpicius Severus' Dialogi (where No. 17 occurs) or Vita S. Martini (where No. 19 is found); but Nos. 18, 20 and 21 have not yet been traced.

- p. 43b-44ª XLII. Incipit ex diuersis libris . The Glosses 1, 3, 5, 10, 12, 15-19 occur in the Dialogi of Sulp. Severus. No. 4 is found in the same author's Vita S. Martini. Glosses 2, 6-9, 11, 13, 14, 20, 22 have not yet been traced; 21, 23-27 occur in the Vita S. Eugeniae Virginis et Martyris (Migne's Patr. Lat. Vol. LXXIII, col. 605 sqq., and id. Vol. XXI, col. 1105 sqq.).
- II. Item de diuersis nominibus (On divers nouns) = Donati Ars Grammatica (Henr. Keil, Grammatici Latini, Vol. 1V, Lipsiae, 1864, XLIII. 367 sqq.) p. 44^{a} — 45^{a} Some of the lemmata do not occur in the text of Donatus as p. 367 sqq.)

known to us, but have been excerpted from other grammatical works specially referred to in the I. (Latin) Index.

XLIV. Item alia; de Caelo = S. Isidori de natura Rerum (see also above Ch. XXVII) in Vol. VII of Areval's ed. of Isidore's Opera, Romae, 1803. Reprinted in Vol. LXXXIII of Migne's Patr. Lat.; to this last ed. most p. 45ª-46b of the references are made .

XLVI. Item alia [Glosses 1-39 = Ars Phocae, like Ch. XLV. For the p. 47ª-47b Glosses 40-43, see the I. (Latin) Index]. . .

p. 47b-49b

None of the 103 Glosses comprised in this Ch. have as yet been traced to any source with certainty. But perhaps the following are excerpted from Aldhelm :

No. 6 (cirris=A. p. 66, 8), 13 (perna=A. p. 251), 15 (tappula, tip-=A. p. 254), 56 (ciconia=A. p. 257), 87 (castorius; see A. p. 264), 93 (scrufa=A. p. 266). If this be right, possibly other lemmata might be traced to him. It will be seen from the I. (Latin) Index that they all occur in the Cp. and Ef.¹ Glossaries, and most of them also in the Ep. Glossary.

XLVIII. Item de Cassiano (see above, Chapter XXXIV) p. 49^b-50^b

The references in the Lat. Index are all to the edition A; the editions B and C are specially named, where reference is made to them. Cacciari's edition (C) would have been used as the primary one, if it had been accessible to me at the outset. Only after I had read edition A four or five times, and made all my references to it, did I learn that a copy of this apparently rare work (which is neither in the Cambridge University Library, nor in the British Museum) was in the possession of the Rev. Prof. John E. B. Mayor, who kindly lent it to me for further reference.

It was, for various reasons, not practicable to use Mommsen's edition, or to verify the references to the Rhenanus ed. of 1548 with his text. Firstly, Mommsen's edition as yet does not go further than Rufinus'

fifth Book, so that, in any case, the work of verification would have remained incomplete. Secondly, the arrangement and pagination of edition A differ so widely from that of Mommsen's that a verification of all the references would have been too great a labour. Those who use the present work are, therefore, requested to make these verifications themselves if they require them. The differences between Mommsen's text and that of the earlier edition do not seem to be very material.

- * MS. leaves space for one letter between O and S.
- + The second r is blurred, and not clear.

§ The words numbered 17ª and 18 are written (Note or Nolk? in capitals; Barbarus, in somewhat larger characters than the other glosses) in a vacant space left between the B and C glosses, in faint ink, but apparently by the same hand as the rest of the Glossary.

T Between the m and p a letter (apparently .p, for pro) has been erased.

* The initial capital is distinctly A; but the place where the word appears suggests Habita.

+ Owing to some spot in the vellum the scribe left a blank for about four or five letters between In and con-.

§ These four words are written in one line in the MS., and in subselliis may be an interpretation to in scammis. But it is also possible that we have here two lemmata, to which interpretations are wanting, as in scammis appears in 1x. 10, and in subselliis in xr. 6 of the Regula. \P So in MS.

|| Goetz, Corpus v. 413, 69, prints succuit, and suggests suauiter in his Index. But the MS. has distinctly suauiter, not succuit.

¶ Here follows in the MS. s, which seems to have no meaning, and was, perhaps, written by the scribe in place of the usual ; .

After alii two or three letters have been erased, and one or two other letters, on the right and left of the erasure, seem to have been wiped away.

The p seems a correction from o; the mark for ro attached to its down-stroke is written on the place of an erased letter of which traces are still visible.

 For unciae. §§ The third I has been lengthened by a kind of undulating perpendicular stroke below the line.

T The f is a correction from some other letter (c?).

III Here the word est followed, but it has been erased.

11 Nos. 17 and 18 do not appear in the printed texts of Eucherius.

+ The second i and the o are written on an erasure.

§ Before this word a letter (c?) has been partly erased and partly effaced. The first o resembles the Greek δ , and might therefore be read as d; but this form for o is not uncommon in the MS.; in the present case the top-curl looks fainter than the circle forming the o; it has, however, this faintness in common with some other letters in the lines above and below this word.

The h has been added above the line between the c and i.

The g is a correction from n. ‡ MS. tribatarii, but the first a corrected into v.

 The p is a correction from some other letter (o?).

++ The v is a correction from i.

ancillis, animalibus figl, xrx. 63 (Job xr., 24 Numquid illudes ei quasi avi, aut ligabis eum ancillis tuis). On this quota-Job, Migne Patr. L. XXIII col. 1465c): "In tantum Deo humiliabitar draconis istius fortitudo, ut omnino pro nihilo erit, et ab animabus sanctis deludetur, quae sunt ancillae Christi," and (Comm. in lib. Job, Migne, P.L. xxvi col. 788°): "Sic itaque alligatur atque illuditur a sanctis animabus Dei, quae sunt ancillac Christi." These quotations would suggest animabus for animalibus and figuraliter for figl (over which the MS. has a stroke) in the Leiden Glossary.—Steinm. (Zeitschr, f. d. Alterth. xxxIII, 249) referring to the same gloss, quotes (Germania viii, 389) from a Paris MS. (2685, olim Colbert 4951) ancellis, annalibus figuli, and re-gards figuli as Latin. But then the gloss would remain unintelligible.—Jerome's translation of the balance of the second translation of the book of Job (Migne, Patr. Lat. xxvIII col. 1120°) has: "Numquid illudes ei quasi avi [h. passeri] aut ligabis cum [Al. eum] aucillis [h. puellis] tuis." Migne's aucillis (which would=aucellis) is printed ancillis in Vallarsius' ed. of 1738 col. 1150. If aucillia (little birds) is not a misprint, but actually found in Migne's MS. or MSS., it would agree with the Glossary altered ancillis into aucillis, and if we regard figl (adding some letter or letters to represent the stroke over the g) as a form (nom. or oblique?) of the ordinary A.S. fugel, fugol, fugul (a bird).—It is to be noted that the Hebrew has וְתָקַשְׁרָבּוּ לְנַשְׁרוֹתֶיך, but the Septuagint η δήσεις αυτόν ώσπερ στρουθίον (sparrow) παιδίω for aut ligabis cum ancilis tuis of the Vulg., and Jerome knew this reading of the Sept. as, in his Comm., he says (Migne xxvi col. 789^λ): "Alii dixerunt Alligabis cum siont passerem infantulo, quod est, ab infantulo teneatur praecepto imperii mei, et velut ligatus in potestatem tradetur. Hic est ille infans, de quo Isaias ait: Infans ab ubere in foramine aspidum manum mittet &c." See also Migne, Patr. Lat. LXXIII col. 177, note 41. It seems, therefore, clear that there was a Latin text in Jerome's time agreeing with the Sept., and, perhaps, the Glossary All the MSS. of the Vulg. at Cambridge, and in the Brit. Mus., which I have examined have ancillis.

As to arngeus, carngeot, carngeat, arngeup, æren-geat (Wright W. 117, 24), eargeat (ibid. 258, 4; 351, 14), all explaining arpa and carngeap glossing vultur (ib. 132, 19) and asapa (for arpa? Cp. A862), seem to be not compounds, but two different, alterna-live words, the first of which (are carned) tive words, the first of which (arn, earn, aern, aren, car) means an eagle (Oxf. D. erne), and as such is a gloss to aquila (Wright W. 131, 10; 258, 3; 284, 3; 317, 44; 351, 12). The second (geus, 317, 44; 351, 12). The second (geus, geup, geap, geot, geat) seems to be the Gr. $\gamma\psi\psi$ Latinised as geus (instead of gūps) or $\gamma\bar{\nu}\pi\pi$ Latinised as geup (instead of gūp-). The form geop arose from eu being Anglicised as eo, and this gave rise to the corrupted geot, and finally geat.— Bosw. T. explains earngeap as a vulture, species of falcon (earn, an eagle + the adj.

geap, now usually written geap, shrewd, cunning), and earn-geat, as a goat-eagle, vulture. But A.S. ea does not become E. oa, and in any case the compound would mean eagle-goat, not goat-eagle. Kluge (Ags. Leseb. p. 172) explains the simple earn as adler (eagle), but the com-Fimple earn as adler (eagle), but the com-point earn-geat (-geup) as geier (vulture). —Egilsson (Lex poët.) gives o. N. gaupi, gauti, a sea-king, pirate, which may, for its sense, rest on $\gamma v \pi - a$, associated, by popular etymology, with o. N. gaupa, a lynx (cf. A. S. gëap) and o. N. gautr, A. S. If this reference to II. 10, where the lemma should occur, according to the order in which the gloss appears in the MS., is correct, asilium diuinum seems to be a lemma without interpretation. But it is possible that the glossator having explained asylum by sanctum (see asitum, IV. 14 in v. asillum), interpreted auxilium by diuinum asillum, locus refugii sanctus, xxv. 50 (De Euseb.); asitum, sanctum, rv. 14 (Eccl. Ist.) = (Ruf. II. 6 fol. 21^b templum...quod... perdurauerat asylum). Cf. asilum, tem-plum refugii, Cp. A846; Ep. 2E37; Ef.¹ 341, 41.

asolatis, plane factis, xvn. 9 (Nahum 1. 5 colles desolati sunt). From the gloss (plane factis) it seems clear that the final s of the lemma was regarded as belonging to it. There is, apparently, a stroke in the MS, over the s (therefore sunt), but a point above it marks it for erasure. Asolati (for assolati?) points to a reading different from the Vulgate.

ason, integritas, xxxrv. 7 (De Cass., Inst, vr. 4 in affectum integritatis uel incorruptionis transire, quod dicitur ἀγνδν; in note asNON; autNON). aspaltum, spaldur, xm. 18 (Eccles. xxrv.

20 sicut cinnamomum et balsamum aro-matizans odorem dedi). Sab. points out in note that the Gr. has $\delta\sigma\pi\delta\lambda a\theta os$ $d\rho\omega-\mu d\tau\omega r$, and the MS. Sangerm. 15 aspaltum aromatizans. Aspaltum is also in Heyse's text (note). The Corp. Gl. A839 has aspaltum, spaldur; Ep. 2A36 asfaltum, spldr with a added above the line; Ef.¹ 340, 23 asfaltum, spaldur. It is, therefore, possible that spaldur is an A.S. spelling for asphaltum but the Cambridge MS for asphaltum, but the Cambridge MS. Kk. 4. 6 has aspaltum, squalor; a Leiden MS. (Voss. Lat. fol. 24) asfaltum, spalor (Steinm., iv. 278, 1), and other MSS. sypaldor and spalor (Steinm. 1. 561, 1 and notes 1 & 2). The Gr. $d\sigma\pi\delta\lambda a d\sigma s$ means minibudy that in the state of t a prickly shrub yielding a fragrant oil, but a confusion between this word and asphaltum is apparent.

(v. earwig) mentions an insect, forficula auricularia (auricularis, Bosw. T.), so called from the notion that it penetrates into the head through the ear, and it is possible that through the ear, and it is possible that this adj. gave rise to the above lemma, though Op., Ep. and El¹ all have auri-culum. (Wright W. 350, 36) has auriculum, earwicga, obbe dros, and again (353, 20) auriculum, dros. On the other hand, dros, drosna, drosne, (dross) interprets faex (grounds, dregs; see Wright W. 129, 7; 238, 25; 330, 34; 549, 4), also auricula and amurca (Bosw. T. dros, dross, drosna). The Promptor. Parv. (of c. 1440) explains ruscum, rusculum by drosse or fylthe. The Oxf. D. (Dross, sb.) understands dros, which in-terprets auriculum, to be the scum thrown The Oxf. D. off from metals in the process of melting, which would make auriculum = auriculal cum (for orichalcum; see the form ari-culum in Ef.¹).

cinticta onitaltaon [or -talticon, or -taltccon], ratio populorum, xxx. 85 (Cat. Hier. xcvn1 col. 699 elaboravit in Eccle-They, xould consider the sector of the sect AAGRHTON, ratio populorum, found in the Cp. Gloss. among the A words (A 593). But at that time I had not studied, and thought it unnecessary to study, St Jerome's Catalogus. The above reading of Text B clearly points to συμμίκτων ζητημάτων, and the Leiden cinticta oni may be identified with συμand the Leiden pikrow. But there is difficulty in connecting the Leiden taltaon (or talticon, or tallccon) with $\zeta \eta \tau \eta \mu \dot{a} \tau \omega r$; it rather seems to be the remains of $\mu \omega r \dot{b} \phi \partial a \lambda \mu \omega r$, of which the Glossator explained monon (q.v.) in the preceding gloss (xxx. 84). If this be so, there was, perhaps, another text of the Catalogus which had $\Lambda \Lambda \Omega RHTON$, ratio populorum of the Cp. Gloss. (= achgeharatan En 2026, and address) acbochnrotan, Ep. 3C26, and acdocroaton, Ef.1 342, 49).

Lomum (v. 2) is clearly not the instr. pl. of loma, a tool (for which see Bosw. T. loma, and-geloman, and-loman, gelóman; Kluge, A.S. Leseb. gelóma, rarely lóm, m. gerät, geschirr); nor of leoma, a ray of light, radiance, for which see Napier, index (leoma). Schlutter (Anglia xxvi. 304) would read lonum, from lone = lane, lanu, a lane, narrow path; he also suggests limum (limbs) for lonum. But the gloss diuersis linimentis (for lineamentis, lines or strokes) of xxxv. 257 rather points to lomum for leomum from leoma (also written lema), from A. S. lim, a limb, joint, especially a branch.

enrusa, dapulas, m. 54 (Vit. S. Antonii [auctore S. Athanasio, Evagrio interpr.] 16, Migne, P. L. LXXII col. 138° Dominus ad Iob dicens : Arbitratur enim ferrum ut paleas, æramentum ut lignum putridum, maria ut terram, tartarum profundi tanquam captivum aestimarit). "Maria ut terram" in this quotation is an addition to Job XLI. 18 [27] wanting in the Vulg., which reads: Reputabit enim quasi paleas "Maria ut ferrum, et quasi lignum putridum aes ; [31] Fervescere faciet quasi ollam profundum mare, et ponet quasi cum unguenta bulliunt. — This addition is also found in the bulliunt. — This addition is also found in the texts of the Vita published at Basle in 1552 (p. 77^ Append. to Liber de Passione D. N. Jesu Christi, &c. ed. Wolfg. Lazius), at Antwerp in 1615 (p. 42^b Herib. Rosweydi Vitae Patrum) and 1643 (Acta SS. Jan. tom. II. p. 126^b). But in Athanasii Opp. ed. Monach. Ord. S. Ben. e Congreg. S. Maurí (Par. 1698), Vol. I. p. 2, where by the side of the Gr. $\tilde{\gamma}\gamma\eta$ rai dé dálasras $\omega\sigma\pie\rho$ ežálærtpov, a Latin translation gives mare reputat quasi vas unguentarium, the versio Evagrii, at the foot of the page. the versio Evagrii, at the foot of the page, has maria ut erasa, with a note appended: "Sic quidam MSS. Bollandus ut terra, alia MSS. ut aëra, quae postrema non quadrant cum Graecis." This text was reprinted in 1857 in Migne's Patr. Gr.

Vol. xxvi col. 8804. The same reading maria ut crasa is found in a Cambridge Un. Libr. MS. (Mm. rv. 28 fol. 7^{bb}) of the 12th cent. And a third reading : the 12th cent. And a third reading : maria ut sata erasa occurs in D. Athanasii Opp. Colon, 1548 (fol. 163^a) and Paris. 1572 (col. 1002).—To account for these differences in the Latin translations of Athanasius' Vita S. Ant., we must, per-haps, ascribe one version to Evagrius, to whom the translation is commonly attribuiled, and another to S. Jerome, who is likewise said to have translated it (see Acta 88, Jan. 0, 114). Our Glossator seems to have had Reagens' text maria at cross (hence corose) before him, and to account the deputes, for which we must, perhaps, road migning, we may further assume that he was a ware of some text which had sate eman. The des epistecerssec(an anguent-box) agrees with the Hole, text 2009 (a pet of continent), but the former is liable to misconstruction, as a derivative from citizeness (1) to physics or wash over; (1) to wips out or obliterate; and it would seem that Evagrins has taken it in this sease.

expertem, expertes, see expertim. expertim, ignorari, xLVIII. 35 (De Cass., Inst. 11. 3, 5 seniorum institutionis ex-pertes). If expertes is the Glossator's lemma, ignorari is perhaps corrupted from ignari. There is expertem caelestis panis, ignari. There is experten caelestis panis, ibid. v. 21, 3; qui innumeros diuersorum casus ac ruinas experti sunt, ibid. vn. 13; nec spiritales pugnas merebimur experiri, ibid. v. 19, 2. The latter two quotations would suggest experiri, non ignorare.

glis, egle, xix, 6 (Uerba de multis = Ars Phocae, p. 412, note 1 fax fraus fex lens glis [text glos] lux lex; note 2 [glos] glix, glis]=Cp. G104 (glis, egle); Ep. 10E6 (glis, eglae); Ef.¹363, 20 (glis, egilae). As the well-known Lat. glis (gliris) means a dormouse, egle &c. have been taken in the same sense; see x, or Klupe (4.8 Lesch dormouse, egle &c. have been taken in the same sense; see ex. gr. Kluge (A.S. Leseb. p. 172) ëgle, spitzmaus. But Schlutter (Anglia, xrx. 474) is of opinion that egle &c. = E. ail(s), the awn of barley or other corn (Germ. Achel), for which see Oxf. D.; Cent. Dict. This is confirmed by other glosses as glumula, scale nel hule, uel egle (Zeitschr. f.d. .(11. 11. 439); perista. egla (Alfr. Vocale , in Wright W. 148, 28); fistucare, strewn, eglan (ih. 405, 33 & 479, 25); aresta, egle (ib. 273, 22); plis, fonfyr [for furfur?] o85e egle (ib. 413, 12); aristis, eglum o55e carum (ib. 347, 29); gliribus, egium (ib. 414, 28; 533, 33). It is to be observed that the texts of Phoe vary between glos, glis and gliz, and that of glis at least three meanings are recorded: (1) glis, gliris, a dormouse; (2) glis, glitis, humus tenax; (3) glis, glissis incrementum. As regards glir (for which some would read glis), a Gloss. Lat. Gr. has trroupes lx86s a sea-fish, for which Du C. proposes to read irrouper, a waterplant, mare's-tail = equisetum. It is, there-fore, not impossible that egle &c. may have had more meanings than one; see egel, in Verdam, Mid. Ned. Woordenb. (1) hedgehog; (2) = hirudo, a leech. iereticos, sacerdotale, xxx. 12 (De Catal.); peri tes zoes theoricas, id est de hac uit[a] contemplatiua, xxx. 13 (De Catal.). In these cases the original Glossator had, perhaps, two, somewhat different, versions of the Cat. Hieron. before him. As regards "iereticos, sacer-dotale" it may refer to Cat. Hier. 11 col. 612^A de genere sacerdotali (Gr. transl. $\gamma \epsilon \nu \sigma \nu \sigma$ i $\epsilon \rho a \tau \iota \kappa \sigma \tilde{\nu}$) or to XI col. 625 de genere sacerdotum (Gr. $\gamma \epsilon \nu o \nu s i \epsilon \rho \epsilon \omega \nu$). But as the Glossator apparently made his extracts from a Latin text (or texts), in which the Greek words were written in Latin characters, and the order in which the present glosses appear in the Glossary suggests an extract from ch. xI, or thereabout, of the Catal., the two glosses 12 & 13 seem to refer to Cat. Hier. XI col. 629^ liber...de apostolicis viris quem et inscripsit περί βίου θεωρητικοῦ ἰκετῶν. If this be the case iereticos (of 12) refers, perhaps, to $ker\hat{\omega}\nu$, and the ti may be misplaced, and belong to theoricas (of 13) to make thereiting. 13), to make theoriticas. For β_{100} of the present texts some MS, must have had fors or jurns, which appears in the Glossary. The Utrecht ed. (B) has traces of these two words in "librum...de apostothese two words in "horum...de aposto-licis viris quem et inscripsit periso oythe yroti koy id est de vita contemplatiua," where so (of periso) points to z_0 - or z_{0-} , and oy (of oythe) to ov (of β_{100}). The Augsburg ed. (C) sheds further light on the gloss (13), it having: "librum...de apostolicis viris quem et inscripsit [blank] de hese vita contemplatina." Et hese rese de hac vita contemplatiua." Germ. Phil. I. 329 and Anglia XIVI. 303) refers this lemma to Ezek. xxvii. 24 Ipsi negotiatores tui multifariam involueris hyacinthi which is glossed, in a St Gallen MS. inuoluclis dicitor quando inuoluitor vesti mentum idest vulluch (Steinm, I. 640, 15 & 16; cf. id. 111. 301, 62 involuculum, connolutio nestium, id est unolloch), and hence unluc &c. a wrapper (Germ. Wickel-tuch); cf. Kluge, A. S. Les. p. 220; Schade, It seems that 1209 (wulluh, wulluch). the above A.S. uuluc, uulluc (O.H.G. sulluch, unolloch) are the same word as weoluc=weoloc, a whelk (in Prov. E. more correctly wilk), though it may also mean "innolucrum" from a root wil-, Indogerm. wel, with a gradation wol, as in Lat. nol-u-ere; hence weoloc and in-uolucrum are from the same root. The original form was perhaps "wiluc, which original form was perhaps "witue, which becomes weoluc, as i becomes eo by u-umlaut (cf. A.S. meoloc, meoluc, milk = Goth. miluks, from "milue), and might also become wulue, by the action of w, just as the old A.S. widu (wood) usually appears as wudu. So that "wilue, weolue, when are computationed to the second wuluc are equivalents, meaning (1) a thing twisted; (2) Lat. involucrum, a wrapper, covering, cloth, G. Wickel-(-tuch); (3) a twisted shell, hence a whelk-shell, and finally the whelk itself.

labastes, in similitudine sculdre de ligno duas tales faciunt interponentes ficos ne citius putrescant, xxI. 20 (Judith x. 5 imposuit ... abrae suae ascoperam vini et vas olei, et polentam et palathas et panes; Heyse, in note, and Migne, Patr. Lat. xxix col. 52 note^b lapates; Sabat., in note, lapsaces; the Sept. παλάθης). Some MSS. have lapates, idest in similitudine palae (shoulder-blade) idest sculdre; cf. Steinm. 1. 481, 5, 18 (lapastes, carice); 484, 3; 487, 47. Palatha of the Vulg. means a cake of preserved fruit, usually figs; but "de ligno" in the above gloss would suggest that the Glossator understood the word to be lebetas, basins, pots or jars; see lapates, olle minores, brocco, Steinm. 1. 486, 27. For sculdre, sculdre, Steinm. 1. 486, 27. For sculdre, sculd see Bosw. T. (sculdor, shoulder). labefacare, agleddego, m. 63 (Vit.

Anton. XVI col. 140ⁿ non potes labefac-tare constantiam). The MS. has this this gloss in a Chapter entitled Uerba de S. Martyni Storia, and hence Steinmeyer refers (II. 746, 30) to Sulp. Sev. Dial. III. 11, 3 totis animis labefactati mussitare et trepidare coeperunt. But as the gloss occurs among a number of glosses all derived from Vit. S. Anton., it is here referred to the above quotation. A verb agleddian is not recorded, but gleddian, to spatter, is quoted by Bosw. T. from Lehdm. 111. 292, 14. Glogger (p. 14) sug-gests that agleddaego may be a causat. of glidan, to cause to glide or slip, or totter; cf. a.glidan (to glide or slip), labascere, Bosw. T. Bosw.

laborum, xxix. 17, see emulumentum. labris [for labiis?], xxxv. 228, see labris. labris, labris [for labiis?], xxxv. 228 (Ruf. xi. 24 fol. 188^b ibi infantum capita desecta inauratis labris inuenta) According to the gloss, the lemma could not be labris [lips] which occurs in Ruf. 1x. 10 fol. 155^a, and xI. 24 fol. 188^b. Perhaps for flabris [not found in Ruf., but] cf. flabra, flatus uentrorum, Cp. F231, and flabris, uentus [for uentis] tempestas, id. F253; flabris, uentis tempestatibue id. F253; flabris, uentis tempestatibus, Ef.² 295, 17.

labrum, ambonem, id est haet, v. 11 (Ruf. 1x. 9 fol. 152* signum quod in coelo sibi fuerat demonstratum, in militaria vexilla transformat, ac labarum quem dicunt in speciem dominicæ crucis ex-aptat). Ambonem (a pulpit or reading desk) cannot explain labarum, a military standard, and may be a lemma without an interpretation, or, perhaps, a corruption for fanonem [for which see Du C.], or for umbonem, the full part or swelling of a garment, and a toga; haet, a hood, hat, would, in case it is meant to gloss labarum, probably signify a head-band, coif. Gf. labrum, segn [a sign, token, see Bosw. T.], Cp. L4; labarum, seng, Ep. 13A30; la-barum, segn, Ef.¹368, 25; see Schlutter, in Lawr Gare Bill, 292 in Journ. Germ. Phil. 1. 323.

perna, flicci, xLVII. 13 (Alia = ?) = perna, flicci, Cp. P250; Ep. 19C4 & 20A10 (p-, flicii); Ef.¹ 380, 54. For flicci, flicce, a flitch of bacon, see Bosw. T. perna, fossa, xXIV. 2 (Math.? not in the Vala?) If the learner is the real bac perna, fossa, xxiv. 2 (Math.? not in the Vulg.?). If the lemma is the well-known word perna, a flitch of bacon (see Wright W.; Cp. P250; Ep. 19C4, 20A10; Ef.¹ 380, 54), it cannot be explained by the equally well-known word fossa, a ditch, trench (see Goetz, vi. 465, fossa). Nor is it explained by Papias' pernae dicuntur vulgo procellae de montibus. Besides that of Leiden only one other MS. has the gloss: perna fossa flycci (Steinm. 1. 708, 1). Perhaps the two words are two lemmata, without interpretations; fossa would not disagree with umecta (q.v.). would not disagree with umecta (q.v.).

pernicies, pernicitas, see pernities. pernities, uelocitas, xLVIII. 31 (De Cass.,

Leer could hardly be a corruption of, or another word for, haeca haca, of Cp., Ep. & Ef.¹. The Glossae Nominum (Goetz, II. 589, 23) have pessulum, lesera, clauus ligneus paruus. The original gloss may have been pessulum [pessulle, sera &c.; or an O.H.G. rigil, or A.S. reogol may have become corrupted to leer. Cf. Körting, Wörterb. No. 7089. leer cannot correspond to O.D. leer (leder, leeden bedder bedder of be leeddre, laddere, ladere), a ladder, and also an instrument for torturing (see Verdam, ladere), as Engl. does not drop d in this way. It is, perhaps, related to prov. E. $l\bar{a}r$, or larra, a bar (see Engl. Dial. Dict.), and may be a synon. of haeca, haca (D. hek), which seem to have meant a hatch, grating, a gate of lattice-work; a hook, bolt or bar. petierit, 11. 70, see exigerit. petigo, tetrafa, xxxv. 74 (Ruf.?). Ac-cording to the order in which this gloss appears in the Glossary, petigo might be looked for in Ch. rx., or in the first two of petigona' neek. But it does not Chapters of Rufinus' work. But it does not seem to occur there, nor im-(in-)petigo; and as it is written in the MS. with a and as it is written in the MS. with a small p, it is perhaps a further explana-tion of ignis sacer (Ruf. IX. 8 fol. 150^b), or of tentigo or prurigo (Ruf. I. 8 fol. 12^b). The Corp. Gl. (I 79) has inpetigo, teter; Ep. 11E25 inpetigo, tetr; Ef.¹ 365, 37 inpegit, teg. Fa of tetrafa is distinctly so in the MS, but the one a may be read Ep. 1125 inperiod, tetr, E. 505, 57 inpegit, teg. Fa of tetrafa is distinctly so in the MS., but the open a may be read as ic, therefore fic, which a St Gallen MS. (Steinm. II. 597, 17 petigo, tetrafic) has, while a Cod. Selest. has fig (id. II. 598, 36 petigo, tetrafig), which, like the Lat. ficus, means a disease of the skin the niles means a disease of the skin, the piles. Bordremum, instrum. plur. of bordrema, an early spelling of bordrima (for em changed into im cf. A.S. lemphealt = limp-halt, limping), literally a board-rim, from bord, a board, plank (Bosw. T.) and rema, rima, a rim, border, edge, joint (Bosw. T. rima). From the same root rem- are derived A.S. reoma, and the A.S., Germ. and D. rand (cf. Kluge, Etym. Wrth. v. Rand). T.), a thing curiously cut, a work of art, jewel, orna-ment, a derivative of writan, to cut, orna-ment, a derivative of writan to cut, ornament, draw, write + baso, brown, purple, scarlet. The colour was artificially produced by the coccus, therefore art-brown, or dye-brown ; the same colour being also denoted by weoloc-basu (q.v.) = whelkbrown (or purple), and wyrm-basu (q.v.) worm-brown. Cf. Kluge, Ang. Les. 219 (wrætt. a trinket, jewel, ornament, and uuretbaso, artificial brown); Bosw. T. sub y. wrætt (crosswort) sub v. wrætt (crosswort) wrongly quotes vermiculum, warance, wrote (from Wrt. Voc. 1, 140, 2), as vermiculus in the Vulg. also (II. 132) plane. sanguessuges, lexas, xLVIII. 51 (De Cass.?). Sanguessuges [for sanguisugas?] is not found in Cassianus' works, whence it is said to have been extracted. Lexas bed as A S in the Leiden MS. it is said to have been extracted. Deterministic is not marked as A.S. in the Leiden MS., either by the usual v or by a stroke, and Steinm. (Zeitschr. für d. Alt. xxxm p. 248) thinks that it is Med. Lat., not the A.S. lines that it is med. hat, not the hand, lines, as a Schlettstadt Cassian-Glossary, which, apparently, records the identical gloss, but shows no traces of A.S., has sanguisuges, lexas egila (Steinm. uiteleos, iuuenes, xxxvi. 22 (Oros. 11, 5. 1 Brutus...uxoris suae fratres, Vitellios iuuenes ... in contionem protraxit ; in note uitelios). Cf. uitelli, sueoras, Cp. U177 and Ef.¹ 399, 3; uitelli, suehoras, Ep. 28A24. The quotation from Oros, shows that uiteleos iuuenes in the present Glossary is a lemma without an interpretation. The first word (altered to a nom. plur.) The first word (altered to a nom. plur.) has crept into the Cp., Ep. and Ef. Gloss., supplemented by an apparent interpreta tion (sueoras, suchoras, nom. plur. of sučor, from sweohor, see Bosw. T. sweór, swehor=G. Schwöher, Schwager, Schwie-ger, Du. zwager, a term which, according to Kluge, originally meant a wife's brother). The first word appears again (as a nom. sing., with the same interpre-tation, also in the sing.) in Ef.¹ 400, 43 (vetellus, sueor). But the A.S. words do not interpret a word (Vitellios), but explain the that the Vitellii were "the brothers fact of the wife of Brutus," that is, "his brothers-in-law (sucoras)." This vetellus, vitellus, should, therefore, not be altered to vitricus, as is suggested by Diefenbach and Goetz; nor find a place in any Lat. Dict,

V. INDEX (GRRMANIC, BUT CHIEFLY A. SAX.

V. INDEX (Germanic, but chiefly A.Sar.).

N.B. All the Germanic words that appear in the Glossary itself are treated in this index as chief entries, therefore printed in disc or Churanism type (ex. gr. aad), with references to the text (pp. 1 to 50). But all entries printed in ordinary type (ex. gr. sam) are quotations either from the Corpus, Epinal and Erfurt Glossaries, or from other sources.

The references in black type are to the L or Latin Index (pp. 51 to 217); those in italies to this present V. Index (er. gr. under adexa, reference is made to lacerta in the L. Latin Index, and to effect and heights in this V. Index).

n- (pref., intens.), see a-fyrhte; a-gleit-igo; an-a-treten; a-mollen; a-mellan; dego; a-tredam.

and (ad), xxxv, 158, the fire, flame of a funeral pile; a funeral pile; see rogus. sam, Cp.; haam, Ep.; fam, Ef. The first word is supposed to be for am, which Boaw. T. explain the reed or slay of a neaver's loom. If so, then haam and fam are corruptions. They are a gloss to canters (q.v.), ablat, of canter, a branding-iron, and both Ep. and Ef. give also "ferrum" as gloss. But in the present Glossary cantere is glossed in one place by tunderi, in another by "ferrum melins tindre.

The following remarks and references relate to Chapter v1. (ent. Breuis exsolutio) of the Glossary, the lemmata of which have, with one or two exceptions, all been traced to Gildas (see above, p. xxxviii), after the whole First or Latin Index had been printed. The references are to Gildas' text in Migne's Patr. Lat. Vol. LxIX (P.), and Mommsen's text (M.) in Monum. German. Histor. (Chronica Minora, Vol. III.). 1. ne (P. col. 330°, 340°, 344°; M. r. 1; xvII. 6).-2. uiscide (Schlutter, Journ. of Engl. and Germ. Phil. v. 466 refers this to Aldhelm 109, 31 Germanitatis uscidae; and niscerade to Aldh. 253 No. 10, 1 viscere terrae). Cf. Corp. Gl. U294 uscide, tohlice (tonghly); Epin. 28A25 uscidae, tholicae (?).-3. entenus (P. 332°, M. I. p. 27, li. 15). -4. uersus (P. 333°; M. III. 6).-5. boriali (P. 333°; M. II. 7).-6. meliorata (P. 333°; M. III. 13).-7. ambrones (P. 340^{\circ}; M. xvI. 1, 2).-8. ast (P. 340°; M. xvI. 15).-9. Thiticum (P. 341°; M. XIX. 9 Tithicam vallem). 10. ernsticis (P. 341° de curicis; M. XIX. 8 de curucis; in notes carruchis.-This word, which means a kind of skiff, or boat, seems to be the one excerpted by the Glossator. If so, the interpretation bucellis should, perhaps, be read butellis, see DuC. butta³). If crustis (which occurs P. 346°, M. xvI. 21) were meant, bucellis would be a dimin. of buca (bucca).

would be a dimin. of buca (buca). 11. catastam (P. 345^{n} ; M. xxii. 2 mittit satellitum canumque prolixiorem ca- tastam). Gildas uses the word catastam again (P. 390° ; M. p. 84 li. 29); "rectius erat, ut ad carcerem vel catastam poenalem quam ad sacerdotium traheremini," and here it clearly means a scaffold, just as in the authors quoted by hears and regard to which where. But this interpretation is unsuitable to the first quotation, in regard to which Hugh Williams points out (p. 54), that Beda uses the words classis prolixior instead, and that DuC. quotes from a MS. treatise on military tactics "accensis catastis lignorum," where catastis must mean "heaps of felled wood," a meaning which would easily afford "the signification of a raft, in which sense Gildas employs the word here as a con-temptuous expression with ratibus." Either of these meanings would suit Gildas' text in the first instance, but here the difficulty is that our Glossator interprets catastam by lupam (which cannot be the well-known classical lupa), in which Schlutter (Journ. of Engl. and Germ. Philol. v. 466) sees an A.S. läpe, and from which he derives Engl. loop. But as every E. oo comes from A.S. $\bar{\sigma}$, we require an A.S. "löp. The only known exception to this rule is A.S. $r\bar{n}m = E$. room, but here the old sound has been preserved by the r preceding, and A.S. lös = E. louse. There is also some phonetic difficulty in accepting Schlutter's interpretation (p. 467 ibid.) of geloed, glood, gelood, which glosses catastam in Cp., Ep. and Ef. (see above v. Index, p. 228⁴). 12. albri (P. 347⁴; M. xxv. 10 apes alvearii; in notes alveariis; alveario). clearly means a scaffold, just as in the authors quoted by Lewis and Short, and else-where. But this interpretation is unsuitable to the first quotation, in regard to which
